Empowerment through Interactive Storytelling

We Tell Stories!

StoriesWork has pioneered Interactive Storytelling, a finely honed tool for working with groups and individuals in domestic violence, aging, parenting, substance abuse, management issues and related areas.

What is Interactive Storytelling?

We tell timeless folk stories from many cultures, ask significant questions, and open discussions that liberate the creative process to reach unique insights and pro-active ideas. The process has been invaluable with a wide variety of audiences regardless of age, gender, education, ethnicity, beliefs, or social class. Soroptimist International has recognized the value of Interactive Storytelling and has cited our founder and StoriesWork for its use in improving the lives of women.

Are there right or wrong answers?

No, this is not a test. In Interactive Storytelling, each participant's reflections are encouraged and respected as a valuable contribution and a clue for solutions and resolutions.

What issues do you deal with?

We have stories that help empower people facing a wide variety challenges in such fields as:

Domestic violence

Substance Abuse

Communication

Delinquency

Parenting

Diversity

Aging

Teamwork

Teens & Dating

...and more

What kinds of services are available?

Staff training

Support group programs

Storytelling for Adults

Public presentations

High school and college seminars

Examples through art
